JERRY REINSDORF

CHAIRMAN

Chairman / Alternate NBA Governor

Jerry Reinsdorf concluded his 44th season as chairman of the Chicago White Sox in 2024, only the seventh individual in Major League Baseball history to surpass the 40-year milestone as a club owner (Connie Mack holds the mark with 50 seasons in leadership of the Philadelphia A's).

During his time as chairman, Reinsdorf's two professional sports teams – the White Sox and the NBA's Chicago Bulls – have delivered seven World Championship titles to the city of Chicago and its fans. Reinsdorf accepted the Commissioner's Trophy from Bud Selig on October 26, 2005, after the White Sox swept their way to the team's first World Series Championship since 1917. The championship was celebrated by a ticker-tape parade attended by nearly 2 million Chicagoans.

The White Sox have reached the postseason seven times during Reinsdorf's tenure, most recently in 2021 when the team captured the American League Central title to reach the postseason in successive seasons for the first time in franchise history. The Sox also captured division titles in 1983, 1993, 2000, 2005 and 2008, as well as claiming a wild card berth in 2020. Every one of the club's Top 20 single-season attendance totals have come since 1981, including a franchise-record 2.95 million fans in 2006.

Reinsdorf's White Sox teams have featured three Most Valuable Player Award winners (Frank Thomas in 1993-94 and José Abreu in 2020), two Cy Young Award winners (LaMarr Hoyt in 1983 and Jack McDowell in 1993), four Rookies of the Year (last Abreu in 2014), five Managers of the Year (last Ozzie Guillen in 2005) and two Executives of the Year (Roland Hemond in 1983 and Rick Hahn in 2020).

Reinsdorf and the White Sox have received five prestigious honors in recognition of the franchise's ongoing commitment to giving back to the community. In December 2022, Reinsdorf and the White Sox received MLB's Allan H. Selig Award for Philanthropic Excellence, recognizing the team's Amateur City Elite (ACE) program which provides baseball and educational opportunities for underserved Chicago youth. Since its inception in 2007, more than 30 ACE players have been drafted, while more than 280 have signed scholarships to play college baseball. The White Sox are just the third franchise to be honored with the Selig Award twice, also being recognized in 2011 for the club's Volunteer Corps program, an initiative that activates staff, players, resources and over 5,000 fan volunteers for various projects improving the Chicagoland community.

In June 2011, Reinsdorf traveled to Washington D.C. to accept the Jefferson Award, one of the nation's top honors for community service and volunteerism, known as the "Nobel Prize for Public Service," while in August 2011, he received the Barnes and Thornburg Jackie Robinson Award for diversity in the workplace. In September 2012, Reinsdorf and the White Sox were again recognized nationally, receiving the Steve Patterson Award for Excellence in sports philanthropy for the team's Volunteer Corps program. Reinsdorf's life-long support for charitable and community organizations has resulted in numerous other awards and recognitions.

Both of Reinsdorf's sports franchises have donated millions of dollars to causes in the Chicago community through a variety of efforts, including Chicago White Sox Charities and Chicago Bulls Charities. Chicago White Sox Charities has donated more than $47 million to worthy Chicagoland organizations in cumulative giving. In 2015, the Chicago Bulls received honors as the inaugural ESPN Sports Humanitarian Team of the Year, and in 2017, the White Sox were finalists for the same award, which celebrates and recognizes how members of the sports industry use sport to serve their communities and make a positive impact. In December 2017, owners for five Chicago sports teams – the Bears, Blackhawks, Bulls, Cubs and White Sox – joined together as the Chicago Sports Alliance to donate $1 million annually to the UChicago Crime Lab and other worthy programs in an ongoing effort to support solutions to the violence that plagues some neighborhoods in Chicago.

Reinsdorf was instrumental in the formation of the Diverse Business Partners (DBP) Program in 1998, and Major League Baseball honored Reinsdorf and the White Sox with the Club Appreciation Award in 2018 to celebrate the program's 20th anniversary. Over the past 20-plus years, Major League Baseball and its clubs have purchased hundreds of millions of dollars in goods and services from minority and women-owned businesses, and the White Sox annually rank among baseball's leaders in the DBP program.

In recognition of his life-long commitment to promoting diversity, Reinsdorf's White Sox hosted Major League Baseball's 2013 Diversity Summit in Chicago, and the franchise also was chosen to host MLB's Civil Rights Game and Beacon Awards Luncheon in August 2014.

Since heading the limited partnership that purchased the White Sox in January 1981, Reinsdorf has been involved in Major League Baseball initiatives at an industry-wide level. He served on the Commissioner's Executive Council and many other committees, including Player Relations, Relocation, Ownership & Legislative, Business and Media Board and Long-Range Labor Planning.

In 2008, his long history of donating time to Major League Baseball led to Reinsdorf being asked to serve on the Board of The Baseball Hall of Fame. Frank Thomas and Tony La Russa were inducted as members of the Hall of Fame's Class of 2014, Tim Raines in 2017, Jim Thome in 2018, Harold Baines in 2019 and longtime great Minnie Minoso was inducted in July 2022. Ken "Hawk" Harrelson was honored with the Ford C. Frick Award for broadcasting excellence in 2020.

Reinsdorf expanded his involvement in professional sports in March 1985 by purchasing controlling interest in the Chicago Bulls. During his tenure as chairman of the Bulls – the third-longest in the NBA – the team has captured six World Championships (1991-93, '96-98). Reinsdorf was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame Class of 2016 in Springfield, Mass., becoming the 10th NBA owner to be honored.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y. on February 25, 1936, Reinsdorf graduated from George Washington University and earned a law degree from Northwestern University after moving to Chicago in 1957. Reinsdorf and his wife, Martyl, have three surviving children, nine grandchildren and one great grandchild. ■

BULLS in the Community

The Chicago Bulls have a strong history of giving back to the community by investing our time, resources, and finances into organizations whose work contributes to community violence prevention through education, community investment, health and wellness, and opportunity access for underserved youth. Chicago Bulls Charities, our team charity, along with the team's Community Relations Department and entire basketball family work to address community needs and give back in the city we are all lucky to call home. We are committed to uplifting underserved communities across Chicago and using our platform to amplify the civic leaders and initiatives that address our city's most critical issues. Our work is enhanced by the generous contributions of our corporate partners, season ticket holders, fans and fundraising programs. From our executives to our players and everyone in between, the Bulls are dedicated to working toward a more equitable and just Chicago. ■

NANCY REINSDORF

President of Chicago Bulls Charities

Nancy Reinsdorf was named President of Chicago Bulls Charities in April 2012. A Chicago native, she has been actively involved with numerous area nonprofits for more than 20 years. Nancy serves as a Bulls community liaison working closely with charitable organizations, corporate partners and the Bulls family to identify ways for the team to make a positive impact on the lives of those in need. Under Nancy's leadership, the Chicago Bulls were recognized in 2015 as the inaugural recipient of the ESPN Sports Humanitarian Team of the Year Award. Nancy serves on the University of Chicago Crime Lab Investor's Council which strives to understand and reduce crime and violence in the City of Chicago through government agencies and non-profit organizations. She is a graduate of Roosevelt University. Nancy, and her husband, Michael, have three children and reside in Chicago. ■

Each season, the Chicago Bulls distribute financial grants through Chicago Bulls Charities to nonprofit organizations that align with the team's commitment to community violence prevention through our four focus areas – Education, Community Investment, Health and Wellness and Opportunity Access. Grants are made through Chicago Bulls Charities and the Chicago Bulls Community Assist Fund, a Robert R. McCormick Foundation Fund. During the 2022-23 season, we supported Chicago communities through financial donations from our annual grants and fundraising support.

Chicago Bulls Charities prides itself on enhancing community initiatives across the Chicagoland area with in-kind donations to uplift community events. Whether its providing sporting equipment to a youth program in need, a DJ for a school event or a player appearance to celebrate the achievements of our community leaders, Chicago Bulls Charities is here to strengthen the good work happening throughout the city.

The ability to do this work would not be possible without the generous contributions from our corporate partners, individuals and fundraising initiatives that fund the team's annual grant program. Our engagement in this work is always enhanced by our passionate players who are eager to join us in our efforts to create a better Chicago for all. ■

New Chicago Guard Josh Giddey is Ready to Run with the Bulls

By Anthony Hyde

The summer of 2024 saw a significant change of direction for the Chicago Bulls as the team embraced the idea of shaking up its roster by trading veteran guard Alex Caruso to the Oklahoma City Thunder for potentially one of the NBA's brightest young stars, Josh Giddey.

At 21 years old and now in his fourth NBA season, Giddey has shown plenty of flashes of brilliance on the hardwood. He is one of the league's most versatile playmakers. His Windy City arrival signifies a bold new chapter for a franchise looking to evolve, retool, and reclaim its place among the NBA's top teams.

For Josh Giddey, the move to Chicago is more than a change of scenery; it is a golden opportunity for him to lead a young, hungry team back to relevance.

From Down Under to the Windy City

Born October 10, 2002, Josh Giddey's path to the NBA was never conventional, but it always seemed destined. Born in Melbourne, Australia, Giddey grew up in a basketball family. His father, Warrick, played professionally with the Melbourne Tigers in Australia's National Basketball League (NBL), and his mother, Kim, played professionally in the WNBL, also with the Melbourne Tigers. From a young age, Josh was taught the ins and outs of the game. His early years saw him rise quickly through Australia's youth basketball system, leading to a breakout season with the NBL's Adelaide 36ers in 2020-21.

At 18, Giddey became the youngest player in NBL history to record a triple-double, drawing the attention of NBA scouts. Then, at the 2021 NBA Draft, the Oklahoma City Thunder selected him as the sixth overall pick, making Giddey the second-highest Australian (Ben Simmons, No. 1 in 2016) ever drafted.

Giddey's rookie season with the Thunder far exceeded expectations. He showed an uncanny ability to control the game with his passing, court vision, and high basketball IQ. It didn't take long for him to be recognized as a standout among the league's young guards. As he did in Australia, Giddey, at 19, became the youngest player in NBA history to record a triple-double and matched Dallas' Luka Dončić for the most triple-doubles as a teenager in league history. He also joined the great Hall of Famer Oscar Robertson that first season as one of the only two rookies in NBA history to post three consecutive triple-doubles. And he was a four-time NBA Western Conference Rookie of the Month (2021-22: Nov., Dec., Jan., and Feb.).

As the Bulls endured an up-and-down 2023-24 campaign, it became apparent changes were necessary. Chicago's front office, long an admirer of Giddey, recognized his potential as a linchpin player for their future. On June 21, 2024, the trade was finalized, sending fan favorite and one of the NBA's top defensive players, Alex Caruso, to the Thunder, bringing Giddey to the Windy City.

A New Dawn in Chicago

The Bulls are no strangers to star power, and Chicago has long been a place where greatness is expected. In Josh Giddey, Bulls fans are getting a player who has already displayed the makings of a franchise cornerstone. His arrival has shifted the team's focus toward a fast-paced, playmaking, pass-first offense that he is more than equipped to lead.

"We've got a hell of a playmaker in Josh," Zach LaVine, a two-time NBA All-Star with the Bulls, says with a smile. "I've played against him plenty of times, so I know what he brings. Josh makes the game fun and easier for everyone because he's always looking for an open teammate. Everybody needs to remember that you have to be ready at all times because he can pass that thing."

Head Coach Billy Donovan also quickly praises Giddey's abilities, pointing to his size, court vision, and basketball IQ. "Josh is a special player," Donovan says. "At his size and how he sees the floor, he makes everyone around him better. He's made an immediate impact on the way we play."

Giddey's role in Chicago is clear: he's the floor general, the engine that will drive a fast-paced, ball-movement-heavy offense. His unselfishness and ability to create easy scoring opportunities for his teammates are game-changers for a Bulls team that, at times over the last few seasons, struggled with stagnation in its offense.

"Josh is the kind of guy you love playing with because he's always looking to make the right play," LaVine adds. "With Josh running the show, I'm excited to see how high we can elevate our offense."

with the recent departure of DeMar DeRozan, who was traded to the Sacramento Kings in a three-team deal that also involved the San Antonio Spurs. DeRozan's exit frees room for Giddey to operate as the primary facilitator.

At 6'8", Giddey is a unique point guard who can see over most defenses and take advantage of his size when he attacks the rim. His height and ability to grab rebounds also allow the Bulls to play faster in transition, which Donovan has emphasized this season.

"Josh does a great job of controlling the pace of the game," says Coby White. "He loves to get out and run, but there's also a calmness to him that rubs off on the rest of us. He has been a huge addition."

One area where Giddey's impact was immediately felt was ball movement. In the past, the Bulls relied heavily on isolation plays, especially with scorers like DeRozan and LaVine. But with Giddey at the helm, the offense has become more fluid, with constant movement and passing leading to higher-quality shots.

Chicago's front office is banking on Giddey's playmaking abilities to unlock the full potential of their roster. Nikola Vučević, who operates best in pick-and-pop or pick-and-roll situations, has thrived playing with a pass-first point guard like Giddey. Vučević is particularly excited about the prospects for the future.

"Josh has that rare ability to make his teammates better," Vučević echoes. "He sees the game differently, and for a center like me, having a point guard who knows how to get you the ball in the right spots is huge. We've already built great chemistry on the court, and the more we play together, the better it will get."

The better the question. The better the answer.

This franchise has such a great tradition, and I'm honored to be a part of it now. We have a great mix of veterans and young guys on our team, and I'm excited to contribute in any way I can.
—Josh Giddey

Growing Pains and the Path Ahead

While Josh Giddey's arrival undoubtedly brings a wealth of potential, it also comes with expectations. Even amid a roster overhaul, Chicago possesses significant talent. Yet, there is also a sense of unpredictability regarding how quickly the team can gel.

The Bulls are leaning on their young core more than ever before. Patrick Williams, still seen as a potential breakout player, is being counted on to play a more significant role this season. Giddey's ability to get Williams involved in the offense could spark the 22-year-old forward to unlock his full potential.

Williams himself is eager to grow alongside Giddey. "Josh is the kind of player who brings everyone together," Williams says. "He and I talk all the time about how we can work on different actions to get me more involved in the offense. That's helping my game a lot."

For Giddey, the transition to a new team comes with its own set of challenges. He's no longer the focal point of a rebuilding franchise like in Oklahoma City—now, he's part of a team with higher immediate expectations. His maturity throughout his young career suggests he's more than up for the task.

"I'm excited about playing for the Bulls," Giddey says. "This franchise has such a great tradition, and I'm honored to be a part of it now. We have a great mix of veterans and young guys on our team, and I'm excited to contribute in any way I can."

Filling the Leadership Void

One of the biggest storylines surrounding the Bulls this season is the departure of DeMar DeRozan, who had been a team leader on and off the court since his arrival in 2021. DeRozan's ability to score, mid-range prowess, and overall savvy were critical elements of the Bulls' identity over the last few years.

However, DeRozan's exit allows Giddey to take on a leadership role, albeit in a different form. While DeRozan often leads by example with his scoring and presence, Giddey leads through vision, unselfishness, and the ability to involve every player on the court.

"DeMar was a great teammate, and we all miss him," says Donovan. "But Josh brings us a different kind of leadership, and I think that's crucial moving forward. He's someone who lifts the whole team with the way he plays. Josh is helping us build a stronger, more cohesive unit."

The Bulls are also looking to LaVine to continue to lead. With Giddey managing much of the playmaking duties, LaVine can focus more on scoring and providing veteran guidance to the younger players. LaVine's budding relationship with Giddey has been a positive factor in the Bulls forging their new identity.

"Josh has been great to work with," insists LaVine. "He's always in the gym, always looking to get better, and that attitude is contagious.

"He and I like to push each other, and in the end, that brings out the best in both of us."

Looking Forward: A New Era of Bulls Basketball

Without a doubt, Josh Giddey's arrival marks a turning point for the Bulls, as they are embracing a new personality centered around ball movement, playmaking, and youth. Many pieces are already in place for the Bulls to become something special, but the success of this new era depends on how quickly the team can adapt to Giddey's style of play. Giddey, for his part, is excited to embrace the challenge.

"I've always loved the game for the way it brings people together," Giddey says. "And I think we have something really special here in Chicago. I look forward to getting on the court with my new teammates every day.

"My job is to make my teammates' life easy," Giddey adds. "I'm trying to get Zach the ball, Coby the ball, get these guys easy looks, and take the load off them. We always talk about how we want to play: Get up the floor, kick the ball ahead, and run. Look at the guys we have on this team, Coby, Zach, Ayo (Dosunmu), Patrick, Julian (Phillips); getting out in transition with these guys can make this team scary."

"If we don't run, we're done," Donovan adds. "It's really that simple. If we run, we'll have a lot of fun."

"We've got an unselfish group. Everyone tries to give each other good shots," Giddey chimes. "Sometimes, we can be too unselfish and turn the ball over too much. But those mistakes come from a good place. It's always better to try and set a teammate up for a good shot than the opposite. Everyone wants to play with guys looking to make the right play."

As the Bulls begin this new chapter, one thing is clear: with Josh Giddey leading the way, the future is bright, and Josh Giddey is ready to take center stage. ■

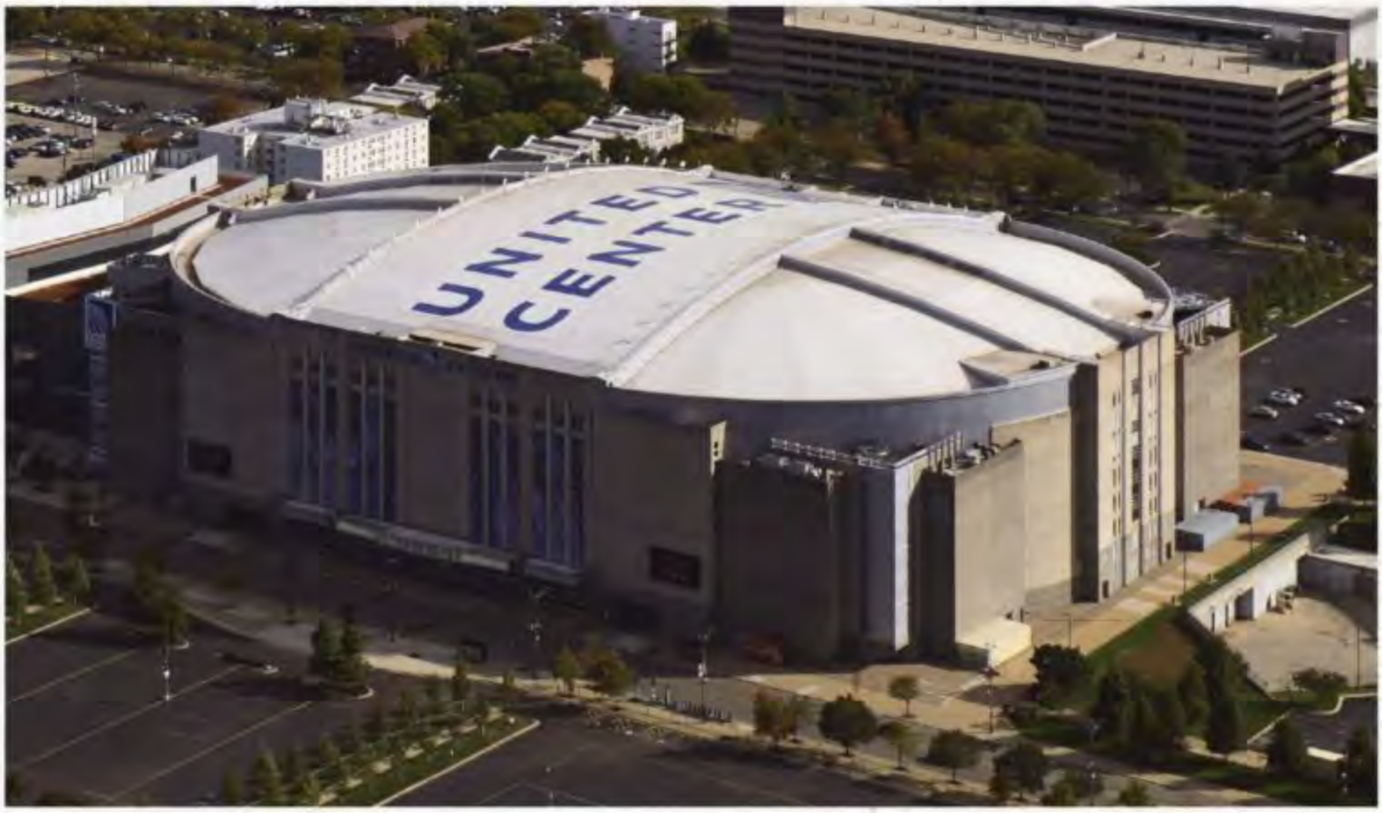
Welcome to the Madhouse

The United Center Celebrates 30 Years

By Anthony Hyde

In 1994, Chicago witnessed the opening of a venue that would forever alter its landscape: the United Center. This state-of-the-art arena nicknamed "The Madhouse on Madison," was more than just a replacement for the legendary Chicago Stadium—it was the start of a new era in Chicago sports, equipped to bring the city's athletic and cultural life into the modern age. A collaboration between Chicago Bulls Chairman Jerry Reinsdorf and Chicago Blackhawks owner William Wirtz led to the creation of this iconic venue. Their vision was to offer fans an unparalleled experience, blending the passion and high-octane energy that had made the Chicago Stadium famous with the comforts of a modern arena.



The United Center quickly became the backdrop for some of Chicago's most unforgettable moments. Michael Jordan's final years with the Bulls, Derrick Rose's explosive arrival, and the Blackhawks' multiple Stanley Cup championships are only a few unforgettable memories in the arena's history. Beyond sports, the United Center also became a cultural landmark, hosting national political conventions twice and artists from around the globe, solidifying its status as a symbol of Chicago's vibrant spirit.

Architectural Vision and Unique Design Features

The United Center was conceived as a reaction to the limitations of the Chicago Stadium, which had served as the home for the Bulls and Blackhawks for decades. Known for its raucous energy and tightly packed seating, the Chicago Stadium was an intimidating arena for visiting teams. But by the early 1990s, it was clear that the building was well past its prime.

Architects from the Kansas City-based firm HOK Sport were hired to design the United Center with one thing in mind: honor the intensity of the Chicago Stadium while creating an experience that embraced the future. At nearly 1 million square feet, the arena was designed to be one of the largest in the country, holding a capacity of over 20,000 for basketball and 19,000 for hockey. The iconic facade—a blend of granite and glass—set a striking tone that symbolized the promise of grandeur and accessibility.

Inside, the arena's design emphasized fan experience and sightlines, ensuring every seat had a clear view of the action. The bowl was structured to capture the crowd's energy, channeling the cheers from the crowd to echo the infamous intensity of the Chicago Stadium. Meanwhile, the new arena's concourses were wider, bathrooms were more plentiful, and concession stands more accessible, reflecting the changing standards in sports venue architecture and fan expectations. The designers also focused on creating luxury seating areas, with nearly 200 executive suites—an unprecedented number at the time—signaling a shift in the economics of sports venues.

The Partnership of Jerry Reinsdorf and William Wirtz

Jerry Reinsdorf, the chairman of the Bulls, and William Wirtz, the owner of the Blackhawks, were pivotal in bringing the United Center to life. The two shared a goal of creating a world-class facility that would not only serve their teams but represent Chicago sports culture's pride and resilience.

Reinsdorf and Wirtz also foresaw the economic potential a new arena could bring to their teams and the surrounding community. However, their ambitious plans came with significant financial risk—at an estimated cost of $175 million, the United Center was entirely privately funded, a rarity at the time for such a large-scale project.

The arena's construction also marked the beginning of a new era in venue management, with Reinsdorf and Wirtz establishing the United Center Joint Venture (UCJV) to oversee the operations and revenue distribution. The UCJV allowed for streamlined decision-making and revenue sharing, ensuring that both franchises would benefit equally from the arena's success. This partnership model would later inspire other multi-team venues nationwide, setting a precedent for how ownership structures could impact team and venue operations.

Early Reactions

When the United Center opened its doors for a ribbon-cutting ceremony on August 18, 1994, it was a moment of transition for Chicago sports fans. The United Center's first official event came on August 29, 1994, when the World Wrestling Federation hosted its 7th Annual SummerSlam '94 pay-for-view extravaganza. Shortly after, the Bulls and Blackhawks took to the court and ice, respectively, beginning the venue's dual role as both a basketball and hockey powerhouse.

The inaugural Bulls game on November 4, 1994, saw Chicago take on the Charlotte Hornets. Although the Bulls were without Michael Jordan, who had retired a year prior, fans were eager to experience the new arena. Many expressed nostalgia for the old Stadium, but the improved seating, sightlines, and enhanced amenities quickly won them over. In its first season, the United Center drew nearly 1 million attendees for Bulls games alone—a testament to the city's enduring love for its team.

For the Blackhawks, the United Center's ice presented new challenges.

Known for its loud, frigid atmosphere, the Chicago Stadium's unique character would be difficult to replicate. But on January 25, 1995, when the Blackhawks took on the Edmonton Oilers in their inaugural game at the United Center (the National Hockey League endured a labor dispute before the start of the 1994-95 season. Thus, the season did not start until January 20, 1995), the raw excitement was palpable. When the Hawks took to the ice for the first time, the sellout crowd let out a deafening roar that grew louder throughout the night as the Blackhawks went on to win, 5-1, signaling Chicago's hockey culture remained as strong as ever.

The United Center's early years also saw many more iconic moments. In 1995, just a year after it opened, Michael Jordan returned to the Bulls, sending shockwaves throughout the sports world. Jordan's arrival electrified the United Center, which soon became the backdrop for some of basketball's most famous moments, including the Bulls capturing three consecutive NBA Championships (1996-1998).

Key Moments in Bulls History at the United Center

The Bulls' history at the United Center began with a season marked by transition. In the inaugural season of 1994-95, Michael Jordan was retired, and the team was in a rebuilding phase. But on March 18, 1995, Jordan shocked the world with his return to the NBA, famously sending out a press release that simply stated, "I'm back."

The following three years would be a golden era for the Bulls and the United Center. From 1995 to 1998, Chicago claimed three consecutive NBA titles, showcasing some of the most iconic moments in the game's history. With Jordan and future Hall of Famers Scottie Pippen and Dennis Rodman, the Bulls dominated the league. They transformed the United Center into a fortress. Fans packed the arena each night to witness Jordan's artistry, and the Bulls' overwhelming dominance.

The Bulls faced many ups and downs in the years following Jordan's second retirement in 1999, but the United Center continued to be a place of rebirth and hope. In 2008, Derrick Rose, a Chicago native, was drafted by the Bulls, reigniting dreams of another Championship run. Rose's lightning speed and explosive athleticism captivated fans, and the United Center became a crucible for breathtaking talent again. Rose's MVP season in 2010-11 was a particularly thrilling time, as Chicago finished with the best record in the league. Though injuries his hampered his career, Derrick Rose's journey played out inside the United Center was a testament to the city's passion for its players and hope for continued greatness.

Key Moments in Blackhawks History at the United Center

For the Blackhawks, the United Center also marked a new beginning. The team had a dedicated fanbase but struggled in the early years at its new home. However, by the late 2000s, a renaissance had taken place. Led by stars Jonathan Toews and Patrick Kane, the Blackhawks assembled a roster to revive the team's fortunes and turn the United Center into one of the NHL's most electric arenas.

The Blackhawks' resurgence peaked in 2010 when the team ended a 49-year Stanley Cup drought by defeating the Philadelphia Flyers in six games. The United Center was once again the center of celebration, as Hawks fans appreciated they were witnessing the revival of a storied franchise.

But the team's story didn't end in 2010. The Hawks went on to capture two more Stanley Cups in 2013 and 2015, cementing itself as a modern era dynasty in its own right.

Beyond the Championship victories, the Blackhawks' storied run during the 2010s helped reshape the United Center's identity. Once considered primarily a basketball venue, the arena became a dual shrine to hockey and basketball greatness, with fans worldwide flocking to Chicago to experience life inside the "Madhouse on Madison."

As the arena celebrates its 30th anniversary this year, the legacy of the Blackhawks and Bulls lives on in every corner of the building. Whether it's the crowd's roar, the sight of multiple Championship banners, or the thrill of watching the next generation of players take the court or the ice, the United Center remains a place where fans feel connected to Chicago's sports heritage. Each victory, each record-breaking performance, and each unforgettable moment adds another layer to the United Center's impressive legacy, reminding fans that they're part of something bigger—a living testament to the spirit of Chicago.

Since its opening, the arena has become one of the nation's premier entertainment venues, hosting various concerts, political events, and cultural gatherings that have contributed to its reputation as a cornerstone of Chicago's cultural life.

Beyond the Court and Ice: Entertainment and Cultural Significance

While the United Center is best known as the home of the Bulls and Blackhawks, its impact extends beyond sports. Since its opening, the arena has become one of the nation's premier entertainment venues, hosting various concerts, political events, and cultural gatherings that have contributed to its reputation as a cornerstone of Chicago's cultural life. From legendary musical performances by icons like Frank Sinatra, Paul McCartney, Bruce Springsteen, U2 and Taylor Swift to hosting community events that bring Chicagoans together, the United Center has celebrated the city's rich artistic and social tapestry, embodying a versatility that has cemented its status as a Chicago landmark.

The United Center has also worked to strengthen its community ties through numerous outreach and philanthropic efforts. The venue regularly collaborates with local organizations, hosting events benefiting Chicago's underserved communities and supporting education, health, and wellness programs. The arena's "Community Night" events allow local organizations to attend games and performances, making the United Center accessible to a broader audience and reinforcing its commitment to Chicago. Additionally, the Bulls and Blackhawks run community programs that offer clinics and mentorship opportunities that foster a positive impact beyond the arena's walls.

The venue's connection to the West Loop and Near West Side neighborhood is another key aspect of its cultural significance. When the United Center was built, these areas were relatively underdeveloped, and the arena's arrival spurred a wave of economic growth and revitalization. Today, the United Center is surrounded by a thriving community of restaurants, bars, and small businesses, creating a lively pre- and post-event atmosphere contributing to the neighborhood's vibrancy.

The addition of the United Center's atrium in 2017 provided a dedicated space for pre-event gatherings and public events, including fan meet-and-greets, team send-offs, and community celebrations. With the atrium's towering windows, fans are greeted by the iconic Michael Jordan statue. This symbol has become synonymous with the United Center itself. This space has helped transform the arena into a year-round destination, even on days when no games or concerts are scheduled.

Through its dedication to hosting events that resonate with Chicago's diverse population, the United Center has become more than just a sports venue—it's a cultural hub that brings people together to celebrate, reflect, and connect. It embodies Chicago's resilience, pride, and enduring spirit, whether it's the thrill of a Bulls playoff game, the spectacle of a live concert, or a community gathering in the atrium. As it celebrates its 30th anniversary, the United Center stands as a testament to how a venue can be more than bricks and mortar; it can be a place that captures the heart of a city and the essence of its people.

A Landmark of Innovation and Community Engagement

As it celebrates three decades of history, the United Center is as forward-looking as ever. It has kept pace with technological advancements, and continues to enhance the fan experience, while also prioritizing community engagement. Recent renovations and tech upgrades have transformed the arena into a modern, eco-friendly, and connected venue.

One of the most noticeable additions in recent years is the expansive LED screens and digital signage installed throughout the arena. These screens offer real-time game statistics, high-definition replays, and dynamic content tailored to each event. In the atrium and concourse areas, digital displays also serve as interactive hubs where fans can check scores, watch highlights, or engage with social media feeds. These screens add to the venue's visual appeal and make the experience more immersive, creating a multi-sensory environment that connects fans to the action on a personal level.

The United Center's management team also constantly explores renewable energy options to reduce the arena's carbon footprint. These initiatives reflect a broader industry shift toward sustainability and demonstrate the United Center's commitment to responsible operations that benefit both the environment and community.

Looking Ahead

As the United Center enters its fourth decade, it remains an icon of innovation and community spirit. The arena's commitment to modernization ensures that it will continue to be a premier destination for sports, entertainment, and community gatherings. At the same time, its dedication to Chicago's neighborhoods and residents solidifies its role as a pillar of the city. With each new season, concert, and community event, the United Center reaffirms its mission to provide an unforgettable experience.

As the United Center looks toward the future, the heart of its vision is the newly announced 1901 Project—a sweeping, multi-phase development plan that will further transform the arena and its surrounding area. Named for the arena's street address, the 1901 Project represents the next chapter in the arena's ongoing evolution, promising to enhance the venue's role as a dynamic destination.

The 1901 Project and Plans for the Next Decade

The 1901 Project is a forward-thinking $7 billion initiative. It will change the face of the entire West Side neighborhood. The 55-acre mega-project will redevelop all the surrounding surface parking lots into an entirely new mixed-use neighborhood, including everything from a new music hall and a hotel to retail, park space, and up to 5,000 new residential units. By blending modern amenities with public spaces, the 1901 Project aims to redefine the concept of an arena, turning the United Center into a year-round destination that offers something for everyone—fans, locals, or tourists.

The project will also include state-of-the-art upgrades inside the arena, from further technological advancements in video and sound to luxury seating options and expanded hospitality services. Additionally, sustainability will remain a priority, with the potential for more green initiatives, including renewable energy sources and increased use of recycled materials, further reducing the arena's environmental footprint. By embracing both technology and sustainability, the 1901 Project will position the United Center to meet the demands of future generations, ensuring that it remains relevant, accessible, and in tune with the values of its community.

For fans, athletes, and artists alike, the United Center is more than just a venue; it's a place where unforgettable memories are made. For fans of the Bulls and Blackhawks, the arena has become a second home, where they've witnessed multiple Championships, shared in the thrill of last-second victories, and celebrated the triumphs of their favorite teams.

As the arena embarks on the next phase of its journey with the 1901 Project, it carries the memories, traditions, and pride of those who have passed through its doors. Looking to the future, the United Center will continue to adapt, innovate, and uplift, creating new opportunities for fans, athletes, artists, and community members to come together. The building's legacy has been transformed—from a groundbreaking sports venue to a cultural landmark—it has earned its place in Chicago's heart. For the next generation, it promises to be a place where dreams are realized, communities are strengthened, and Chicago's spirit shines brighter. ■

Whenever Ayo Dosunmu steps onto the court at the United Center, he is warmly welcomed by the cheers of Bulls fans who see a promising young player and a local kid living out his dream. Selected by Chicago in the second round (38th overall pick) of the 2021 NBA Draft. Dosunmu's ascent from an unheralded rookie to a crucial member of the Bulls' rotation has been inspiring. Known primarily for defensive tenacity, versatility, and a relentless work ethic, Dosunmu has earned his place in the lineup and in the hearts of Bulls fans everywhere.

Early Life and Motivation

Born on a cold, windy day in Chicago on January 17, 2000, Quamdeen Ayopo Dosunmu grew up a Bulls fan. The youngest child of Quam and Jamarra Dosunmu, Ayo — which means "joy" in the West African language Yoruba – became a star player at Morgan Park High School on the Southside of Chicago. He later attended the University of Illinois, quickly earning a reputation as an intense hardwood warrior. As a junior, Dosunmu averaged 20.1 points, 5.3 assists, and 6.3 rebounds, stuffing his trophy case full of hardware – including a consensus first-team All-American honor, as well as the Bob Cousy award, which is bestowed annually to college basketball's best point guard. The Illini were 24-7 that season and captured the Big Ten Tournament title, earning a No. 1 seed at the NCAA Men's National Championship Tournament. Unfortunately for Illini fans, Loyola-Chicago sent Illinois home early in the second round, and Dosunmu fell off the NBA radar. Yet, he never lost faith, especially after the Bulls grabbed him in the second round, knowing Dosunmu would enter the NBA with something to prove. "Growing up here, I always wanted to represent Chicago and the Bulls someday," Dosunmu recalls. "Not getting picked early in the Draft didn't matter. It just made me work harder."

First Impressions

Ask Bulls head coach Billy Donovan about Dosunmu, and you will need to pull up a chair because Donovan can't help but heap endless praise on his young player.

"When Ayo first got here, he stood out because of his attitude," Donovan says. "He came in with no sense of entitlement, just pure grit. His willingness to listen, learn, and adapt made a big impression."

Donovan, who has always valued defense and versatility, saw Dosunmu's potential as a multi-dimensional player from the start.

"We saw his natural athleticism, but his basketball IQ really set Ayo apart. He picked up our system fast, which you don't see much with rookies.

Growing up here, I always wanted to represent Chicago and the Bulls someday.
— Ayo Dosunmu

"For whatever reason, Ayo doesn't get emotionally upset. I think it's a huge, huge positive quality for him. He handles adversity extremely well," Donovan says.

"Ayo leans into adversity and sees it as a challenge, not a threat. He gets more focused and energized. I really admire that."

Stepping into the Defensive Role

Since his arrival, Chicago's defensive schemes have relied heavily on Dosunmu, especially after changes in the lineup following trades and injuries. Known for his ability to effectively guard multiple positions, Dosunmu often takes on the assignment of defending an opponent's top scorer, a role he has embraced wholeheartedly.

"Defense is a mindset," Dosunmu explains. "I've always believed that if I can shut down my man, I'm helping my team. I want to be that kind of player — someone my team can always rely on."

Teammate and fellow guard Coby White has seen Dosunmu's growth firsthand.

"Ayo is relentless on defense," White says. "It's tough because we're both guards, so we push each other every day in practice. Having someone like that makes the whole team better."

White adds that Dosunmu's energy and work ethic also set a standard:

"Ayo's constantly studying opponents, and he's always the first to hit the gym. That level of preparation inspires everyone."

Developing the Offensive Side

Beyond his defensive ability, Dosunmu has also made significant strides on offense. Early in his career, he became known for driving hard into the paint and finishing around the rim. Still, his knack for hitting clutch shots from the perimeter, especially from beyond the arc, has improved dramatically over time. Working closely with Chicago's shooting coach, Peter Patton, Dosunmu has increased his three-point shooting percentage from around 31% to over 40% last season. Patton attributes this progress to Dosunmu's willingness to adjust his mechanics and maintain a disciplined regimen.

"Ayo's approach to improvement is remarkable," Patton says. "He doesn't just put in the reps; he listens, asks questions, and is committed to getting better every day."

Dosunmu's ever-evolving shooting ability has added another layer to his game, making him a more versatile offensive threat. "It's opened up my game in ways I hadn't expected," Dosunmu reflects. "Now, defenders must respect my outside shot, which lets me create more plays and keep the defense on its toes."

However, becoming a legitimate threat behind the arc goes beyond taking more 3-pointers. Dosunmu also understands he needs to continue to attack defenders more aggressively — not constantly firing up a shot every time a defender runs out to him, yet still making an opponent pay for giving him space on the perimeter.

"It's very vital in today's game," Dosunmu claims. "Many defenders fear my speed, so they tend to lay back and not get too close to me. When that happens, it's on me to teach them that's a bad decision by becoming a real scoring threat from the perimeter. Becoming a better shooter makes me more dynamic. As a player, that's what you work for in this league. You want to be as dynamic as possible so defenders can't take anything away from you."

Earning Respect

Opposing teams and players have also taken notice of Dosunmu's tenacity and skill set. Doc Rivers, the head coach of the Milwaukee Bucks, recently said of Dosunmu, "Ayo's the type of player who doesn't make it easy for you. If he's guarding you, you know you're in for a tough night. And if you fail to guard him, he'll make you pay."

This reputation has earned Dosunmu a growing respect around the league, particularly as he continues to take on assignments guarding high-profile scorers.

Challenges and Resilience

Despite his impressive trajectory, Dosunmu has faced challenges, from HelpCureHD aims to help improve the quality of life for those affected by Huntington's Disease by contributing financial, emotional, and mental support while trying to find the cure.

THE PROBLEM

There is no cure for Huntington's Disease. Currently, there is a 50/50 chance a child could inherit the disease if a parent has HD in their family line.

There is a way to stop the gene from being passed on, through in vitro fertilization, or IVF. A procedure that implants embryos that do not have the HD gene can cost upwards of $25,000 - $30,000. This treatment is the only way parents who are at risk can guarantee their biological child will be HD-free.

OUR GOALS

- Provide the finances for families who are at-risk and in financial need and are willing to undergo IVF in order to stop the HD gene from being passed on in their family line.
- Our broader focus is to continue developing partnerships with fertility clinics across the country and raising funds to help cover these costs for many more families.
- HelpCureHD has already awarded 136 families through its grant program, which means Huntington's Disease will be eradicated from dozens of family lines FOREVER. HCHD has welcomed dozens of healthy babies already born, and many on the way!

adapting to the physicality of the NBA to stepping into greater responsibilities with his team. Bulls' assistant coach Dan Craig speaks to his resilience: "Ayo's been thrown into the fire more than once, and he's never backed down. He's incredibly mature for his age and has the mental toughness that separates good players from great ones."

Becoming a Leader

With roster changes bringing in new faces and veterans, Dosunmu's role has evolved into leadership, even as a younger player. While he doesn't always lead vocally, his actions have set a powerful example. "I'm not the loudest guy on the court, but I try to lead by showing up, working hard, and putting the team first," Dosunmu says. "Chicago means a lot to me, and being a Bull means everything. I want to represent this city the right way."

Coby White notes that Dosunmu's dedication has positively impacted the team's younger players: "Ayo shows that no matter where you come from or what your draft position is, you can make a big impact if you put in the work."

The two have built a rapport on and off the court, and their combined efforts are shaping the Bulls' future.

The Fans' Connection

Fans have embraced Dosunmu as one of their own, and he draws energy from the support he receives. "Chicago fans are passionate; they expect you to give it everything," Dosunmu says with a smile. "That's what I love about this city. They push me to be better, and it's a privilege to play for them."

Billy Donovan also acknowledges that Dosunmu's connection to the fans makes him a unique player for the Bulls. "When you've got a hometown kid giving everything for his city, it brings something special to the team and the crowd," Donovan explains. "Ayo's become someone our fans can rally behind, and that energy boosts everyone."

What's Next

Dosunmu sees himself as a key part of the Bulls' long-term vision. His goals include becoming a more consistent playmaker and improving his defensive skills. "I want to keep building my game and add more tools each season," Dosunmu says. "I've learned so much from the veterans and coaches here and am excited about the future."

With a solid contract in place and the organization's backing, Dosunmu has positioned himself as a cornerstone player for a team in transition. As the Bulls look to balance developing younger players with adding more talent in the Draft, free agency, and trades, Dosunmu's presence offers stability and potential. ■

Arthur Sutton is a musician, producer, and licensed attorney from Yazoo, Mississippi, raised on Chicago's South Side. Active in the music industry since the 1990s, he has produced several albums, written over 100 songs, and earned Stellar Award recognition. In 2008, he produced the How Sweet the Sound Choir Competition, where his wife, Janet Sutton, and The Voices of Acme Choir were named "Best Church Choir in America" and later received a Stellar Award nomination.

As an attorney, Arthur holds a Juris Doctor and practices in Illinois, specializing in entertainment law, contracts, and civil litigation. He and Janet have three children, including Jucari Sutton, who performs with the gospel group The Gift of Praise.

Arthur Sutton and The Gift of Praise have toured nationwide since 1990, blending contemporary Christian music with quartet traditions. They've shared stages with artists like Fred Hammond, Yolanda Adams, Shirley Caesar, and Donnie McClurkin. Known for inspiring worship music, Arthur's hit singles "I Got an Angel" and "He Extended My Life" have achieved significant chart success.

Chronic Migraine making you feel like a spectator in your own life?

You are not alone.

Could it be Chronic Migraine?
Take the Quiz. Just 7 questions. Then share with your doctor.

INDICATION

BOTOX® (onabotulinumtoxinA) is a prescription medicine that is injected into muscles and used to prevent headaches in adults with chronic migraine who have 15 or more days each month with headache lasting 4 or more hours each day in people 18 years and older.

It is not known whether BOTOX is safe and effective to prevent headaches in patients with migraine who have 14 or fewer headache days each month (episodic migraine).

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION

BOTOX may cause serious side effects that can be life threatening. Get medical help right away if you have any of these problems any time (hours to weeks) after injection of BOTOX:

- Problems swallowing, speaking, or breathing, due to weakening of associated muscles, can be severe and result in loss of life. You are at the highest risk if these problems are preexisting before injection. Swallowing problems may last for several months.
- Spread of toxin effects. The effect of botulinum toxin may affect areas away from the injection site and cause serious symptoms, including loss of strength and all-over muscle weakness; double vision; blurred vision; drooping eyelids; hoarseness or change or loss of voice; trouble saying words clearly; loss of bladder control; trouble breathing; and trouble swallowing.

There has not been a confirmed serious case of spread of toxin effect away from the injection site when BOTOX has been used at the recommended dose to treat chronic migraine.

BOTOX may cause loss of strength or general muscle weakness, vision problems, or dizziness within hours to weeks of receiving BOTOX. If this happens, do not drive a car, operate machinery, or do other dangerous activities.

Do not receive BOTOX if you are allergic to any of the ingredients in BOTOX (see Medication Guide for ingredients); had an allergic reaction to any other botulinum toxin product such as Myobloc® (rimabotulinumtoxinB), Dysport® (abobotulinumtoxinA), or Xeomin® (incobotulinumtoxinA); have a skin infection at the planned injection site.

The dose of BOTOX is not the same as, or comparable to, another botulinum toxin product.

Serious and/or immediate allergic reactions have been reported, including itching; rash; red, itchy welts; wheezing; asthma symptoms; dizziness; or feeling faint. Get medical help right away if you experience symptoms; further injection of BOTOX should be discontinued.

CHRONIC MIGRAINE

FDA-APPROVED AS A PREVENTIVE CHRONIC MIGRAINE TREATMENT
FOR OVER 13 YEARS*

Why wait? Talk to your doctor about BOTOX® for Chronic Migraine.

BOTOX® prevents headaches in adults with Chronic Migraine, 15 or more headache days a month, each lasting 4 hours or more. BOTOX® is not approved for 14 or fewer headache days a month.

BOTOX® prevents, on average, 8 to 9 headache days and migraine/probable migraine days a month (vs 6 to 7 for placebo).

§Data on file as of December 2023. Data subject to change. Data are not a guarantee of coverage, or partial or full payment, by any payers listed. The cost of BOTOX® is different for everyone. It depends on your insurance, how much your insurance covers for BOTOX®, and what your doctor charges you for the procedure. You will want to check the specifics of your insurance plan, including your deductible and out-of-pocket costs.

Tell your doctor about all your muscle or nerve conditions, such as ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease, myasthenia gravis, or Lambert-Eaton syndrome, as you may be at increased risk of serious side effects, including difficulty swallowing and difficulty breathing from typical doses of BOTOX.

Tell your doctor about all your medical conditions, including if you have or have had bleeding problems; have plans to have surgery; had surgery on your face; have weakness of forehead muscles, trouble raising your eyebrows, drooping eyelids, and any other abnormal facial change; are pregnant or plan to become pregnant (it is not known if BOTOX can harm your unborn baby); are breastfeeding or plan to (it is not known if BOTOX passes into breast milk).

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements. Using BOTOX with certain other medicines may cause serious side effects. Do not start any new medicines until you have told your doctor that you have received BOTOX in the past.

Tell your doctor if you received any other botulinum toxin product in the last 4 months; have received injections of botulinum toxin such as Myobloc®, Dysport®, or Xeomin® in the past (tell your doctor exactly which product you received); have recently received an antibiotic by injection; take muscle relaxants; take an allergy or cold medicine; take a sleep medicine; take aspirin-like products or blood thinners.

Other side effects of BOTOX include dry mouth; discomfort or pain at the injection site; tiredness; headache; neck pain; eye problems such as double vision, blurred vision, decreased eyesight, drooping eyelids, swelling of your eyelids, and dry eyes; drooping eyebrows; and upper respiratory tract infection.

For more information, refer to the Medication Guide or talk with your doctor.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

CONSUMER BRIEF SUMMARY

full Prescribing Information

Patient Information

This summary contains important risk information about BOTOX. This brief summary is not comprehensive and does not take the place of talking with your healthcare provider about your medical condition or treatment. To learn more, talk to your healthcare provider or pharmacist. For a copy of the full Prescribing Information, visit www.BOTOX.com or call 1-800-678-1605.

What is the most important information I should know about BOTOX?

BOTOX may cause serious side effects that can be life threatening, including:

- Problems breathing or swallowing
- Spread of toxin effects

These problems can happen hours, days, to weeks after an injection of BOTOX. Call your doctor or get medical help right away if you have any of these problems after treatment with BOTOX:

- Problems swallowing, speaking, or breathing. These problems can happen hours, days, to weeks after an injection of BOTOX usually because the muscles that you use to breathe and swallow can become weak after the injection. Death can happen as a complication if you have severe problems with swallowing or breathing after treatment with BOTOX.
  - People with certain breathing problems may need to use muscles in their neck to help them breathe. These people may be at greater risk for serious breathing problems with BOTOX.
  - Swallowing problems may last for several months. People who cannot swallow well may need a feeding tube to receive food and water. If swallowing problems are severe, food or liquids may go into your lungs. People who already have swallowing or breathing problems before receiving BOTOX have the highest risk of getting these problems.
- Spread of toxin effects. In some cases, the effect of botulinum toxin may affect areas of the body away from the injection site and cause symptoms of a serious condition called botulism. The symptoms of botulism include:
  - loss of strength and muscle weakness all over the body
  - double vision, blurred vision and drooping eyelids
  - hoarseness or change or loss of voice (dysphonia)
  - trouble saying words clearly (dysarthria)
  - loss of bladder control
  - trouble breathing
  - trouble swallowing

These symptoms can happen hours, days, to weeks after you receive an injection of BOTOX.

These problems could make it unsafe for you to drive a car or do other dangerous activities. See "What should I avoid while receiving BOTOX?"

There has not been a confirmed serious case of spread of toxin effect away from the injection site when BOTOX has been used at the recommended dose to treat chronic migraine, severe underarm sweating, blepharospasm, or strabismus.

What is BOTOX?

BOTOX is a prescription medicine that is injected into muscles and used:

- to treat overactive bladder symptoms such as a strong need to urinate with leaking or wetting accidents (urge urinary incontinence), a strong need to urinate right away (urgency) and urinating often (frequency) in adults when another type of medicine (anticholinergic) does not work well enough or cannot be taken.
- to treat leakage of urine (incontinence) in adults with overactive bladder due to neurologic disease when another type of medicine (anticholinergic) does not work well enough or cannot be taken.
- to treat overactive bladder due to a neurologic disease in children 5 years of age and older when another type of medicine (anticholinergic) does not work well enough or cannot be taken.
- to prevent headaches in adults with chronic migraine who have 15 or more days each month with headache lasting 4 or more hours each day.
- to treat increased muscle stiffness in people 2 years of age and older with spasticity.
- to treat the abnormal head position and neck pain that happens with cervical dystonia (CD) in adults.
- to treat certain types of eye muscle problems (strabismus) or abnormal spasm of the eyelids (blepharospasm) in people 12 years of age and older.

BOTOX is also injected into the skin to treat the symptoms of severe underarm sweating (severe primary axillary hyperhidrosis) when medicines used on the skin (topical) do not work well enough.

It is not known whether BOTOX is safe and effective in people younger than:

- 18 years of age for treatment of overactive bladder with urinary incontinence
- 5 years of age for the treatment of overactive bladder due to a neurologic disease
- 18 years of age for treatment of chronic migraine
- 16 years of age for treatment of cervical dystonia
- 18 years of age for treatment of hyperhidrosis
- 12 years of age for treatment of strabismus or blepharospasm
- 2 years of age for treatment of spasticity

It is not known whether BOTOX is safe and effective to prevent headaches in people with migraine who have 14 or fewer headache days each month (episodic migraine).

It is not known whether BOTOX is safe and effective for severe sweating anywhere other than your armpits.

Who should not receive BOTOX?

Do not receive BOTOX if you:

- are allergic to any of the ingredients in BOTOX. See the end of this Consumer Brief Summary for a complete list of ingredients in BOTOX.
- had an allergic reaction to any other botulinum toxin product such as Myobloc®, Dysport®, or Xeomin®.
- have a skin infection at the planned injection site.
- are being treated for urinary incontinence and have a urinary tract infection (UTI).
- are being treated for urinary incontinence and find that you cannot empty your bladder on your own (only applies to people who are not routinely catheterizing).

What should I tell my doctor before receiving BOTOX?

Tell your doctor about all your medical conditions, including if you:

- have a disease that affects your muscles and nerves (such as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis [ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease], myasthenia gravis or Lambert-Eaton syndrome). See "What is the most important information I should know about BOTOX?"
- have allergies to any botulinum toxin product.
- had any side effect from any botulinum toxin product in the past.
- have or have had a breathing problem, such as asthma or emphysema.
- have or have had swallowing problems.
- have or have had bleeding problems.
- have plans to have surgery.
- had surgery on your face.
- have weakness of your forehead muscles, such as trouble raising your eyebrows.
- have drooping eyelids.
- have any other change in the way your face normally looks.
- have symptoms of a urinary tract infection (UTI) and are being treated for urinary incontinence. Symptoms of a urinary tract infection may include pain or burning with urination, frequent urination, or fever.
- have problems emptying your bladder on your own and are being treated for urinary incontinence.
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if BOTOX can harm your unborn baby.
- are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if BOTOX passes into breast milk.

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins and herbal supplements. Using BOTOX with certain other medicines may cause serious side effects. Do not start any new medicines until you have told your doctor that you have received BOTOX in the past.

Especially tell your doctor if you:

- have received any other botulinum toxin product in the last four months.
- have received injections of botulinum toxin, such as Myobloc® (rimabotulinumtoxinB), Dysport® (abobotulinumtoxinA), or Xeomin® (incobotulinumtoxinA) in the past. Be sure your doctor knows exactly which product you received.
- have recently received an antibiotic by injection.
- take muscle relaxants.
- take an allergy or cold medicine.
- take a sleep medicine.
- take anti-platelets (aspirin-like products) or anti-coagulants (blood thinners).

Ask your doctor if you are not sure if your medicine is one that is listed above.

Know the medicines you take. Keep a list of your medicines with you to show your doctor and pharmacist each time you get a new medicine.

How will I receive BOTOX?

- BOTOX is an injection that your doctor will give you.
- BOTOX is injected into your affected muscles, skin, or bladder.
- Your doctor may change your dose of BOTOX, until you and your doctor find the best dose for you.
- Your doctor will tell you how often you will receive your dose of BOTOX injections.

What should I avoid while receiving BOTOX?

BOTOX may cause loss of strength or general muscle weakness, vision problems, or dizziness within hours to weeks of taking BOTOX. If this happens, do not drive a car, operate machinery, or do other dangerous activities. See "What is the most important information I should know about BOTOX?"

What are the possible side effects of BOTOX?

BOTOX can cause serious side effects. See "What is the most important information I should know about BOTOX?"

Other side effects of BOTOX include:

- dry mouth.
- discomfort or pain at the injection site.
- tiredness.
- headache.
- neck pain.
- eye problems: double vision, blurred vision, decreased eyesight, drooping eyelids, swelling of your eyelids, and dry eyes.
- drooping eyebrows.
- urinary tract infection in both children and adults being treated for urinary incontinence.
- painful urination in adults being treated for urinary incontinence.
- bacteria, white blood cells, and blood in the urine of children being treated for urinary incontinence.
- inability to empty your bladder on your own and are being treated for urinary incontinence. If you have difficulty fully emptying your bladder after getting BOTOX, you may need to use disposable self-catheters to empty your bladder up to a few times each day until your bladder is able to start emptying again.
- allergic reactions. Symptoms of an allergic reaction to BOTOX may include: itching, rash, red itchy welts, wheezing, asthma symptoms, or dizziness or feeling faint. Tell your doctor or get medical help right away if you are wheezing or have asthma symptoms, or if you become dizzy or faint.
- upper respiratory tract infection.

Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away.

These are not all the possible side effects of BOTOX. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

General information about the safe and effective use of BOTOX:

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes other than those listed in a Medication Guide. This Consumer Brief Summary summarizes the most important information about BOTOX. If you would like more information, talk with your doctor. You can ask your doctor or pharmacist for information about BOTOX that is written for health professionals.
